Say NO to job cuts

171 staff are to be cut

Over 900 staff are uncertain about their future as The University of Manchester plans to axe 171 jobs. The university says it wants to cut 140 academic jobs and 31 professional support roles.

The 2015-16 surplus was £35.6m, and cash reserves will cover 177 days of expenditure. With the university in a strong financial position there is no economic rationale for these cuts, and the university has not provided us with any other reasonable justification.

Teaching and learning at the university will be hit hard by management's proposals.

There are many alternatives

There are many alternatives available - pushing through proposals that target experienced and skilled staff will damage the university's reputation and make it harder to attract and retain the best people.
